AMERICAN ASSOCIATION of GEOGRAPHERS

February 27, 2022

We, the undersigned members of the American Association of Geographers (AAG), declare our unequivocal support for the sovereign country of Ukraine and the families and individuals impacted by this week's unprovoked aggression by Russian President Vladimir Putin. Geography tells us that a people's right to determine their future is inextricably linked with their sense of place and space. Russia's unlawful invasion and occupation of Ukraine force the displacement and migration of countless communities, stripping them of their dignity and fundamental rights. In addition, the environmental damage and societal risks associated with nuclear contamination related to this unprovoked aggression threaten Ukraine and neighboring regions. Any country or political actor who threatens the sacred right of another people's rights to self-determination deserves global condemnation.

Additionally, this conflict has highlighted what terrible acts can be justified under the guise of disinformation. As geographers, we recognize the dire consequences of false narratives about history, boundaries, and territory. The free flow of information and the right of citizens to protest are the underpinnings of a healthy, functioning society. When scientific integrity is warped, or the free flow of information is stifled, leaders can more easily concentrate authority and act unilaterally. Freedom of information is the last bastion of defense against such egregious manipulation of power. As outlined in our organization's guiding policy principles, the AAG condemns any such practices that threaten open access to information and scientific integrity.

The American Association of Geographers (AAG) is a scholarly, non-profit organization that seeks to advance professional studies in geography and to encourage the application of geography in education, business, and government. Founded in 1904 and based in Washington, D.C., the AAG represents approximately 9,000 members in nearly 100 countries whose professional specialties span a broad spectrum of the physical, biological, and social sciences.
